SPORTS

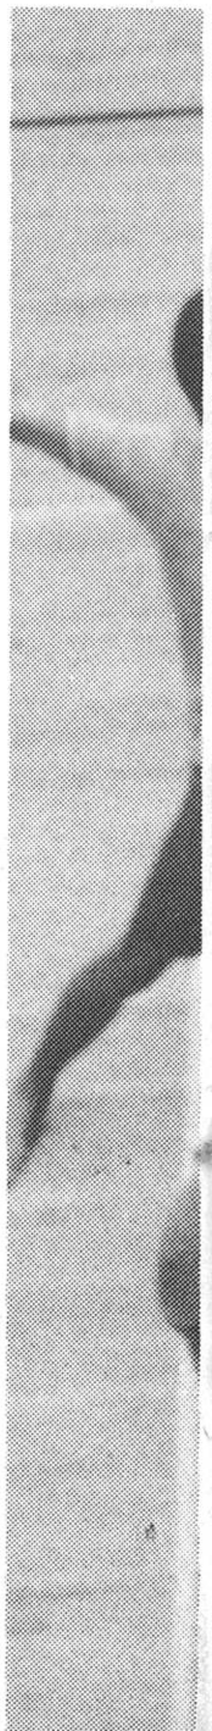

It is not the critic who counts, not the man who points out how the strong man tumbled, or where the doer of deeds could have done better. The credit belongs to the man who is actually in the arena; whose face is marred by the dust and sweat and blood; who strives valiantly; who errs and comes short again and again . . . who knows the great enthusiasm, the great devotions and spends himself in a worthy cause; who, at the best, knows in the end the triumph of achievement; and who, at the worst . . . at least fails while daring greatly, so that his place shall never be with those cold and timid souls who know neither victory nor defeat.

SENIOR GIRLS' BASKETBALL

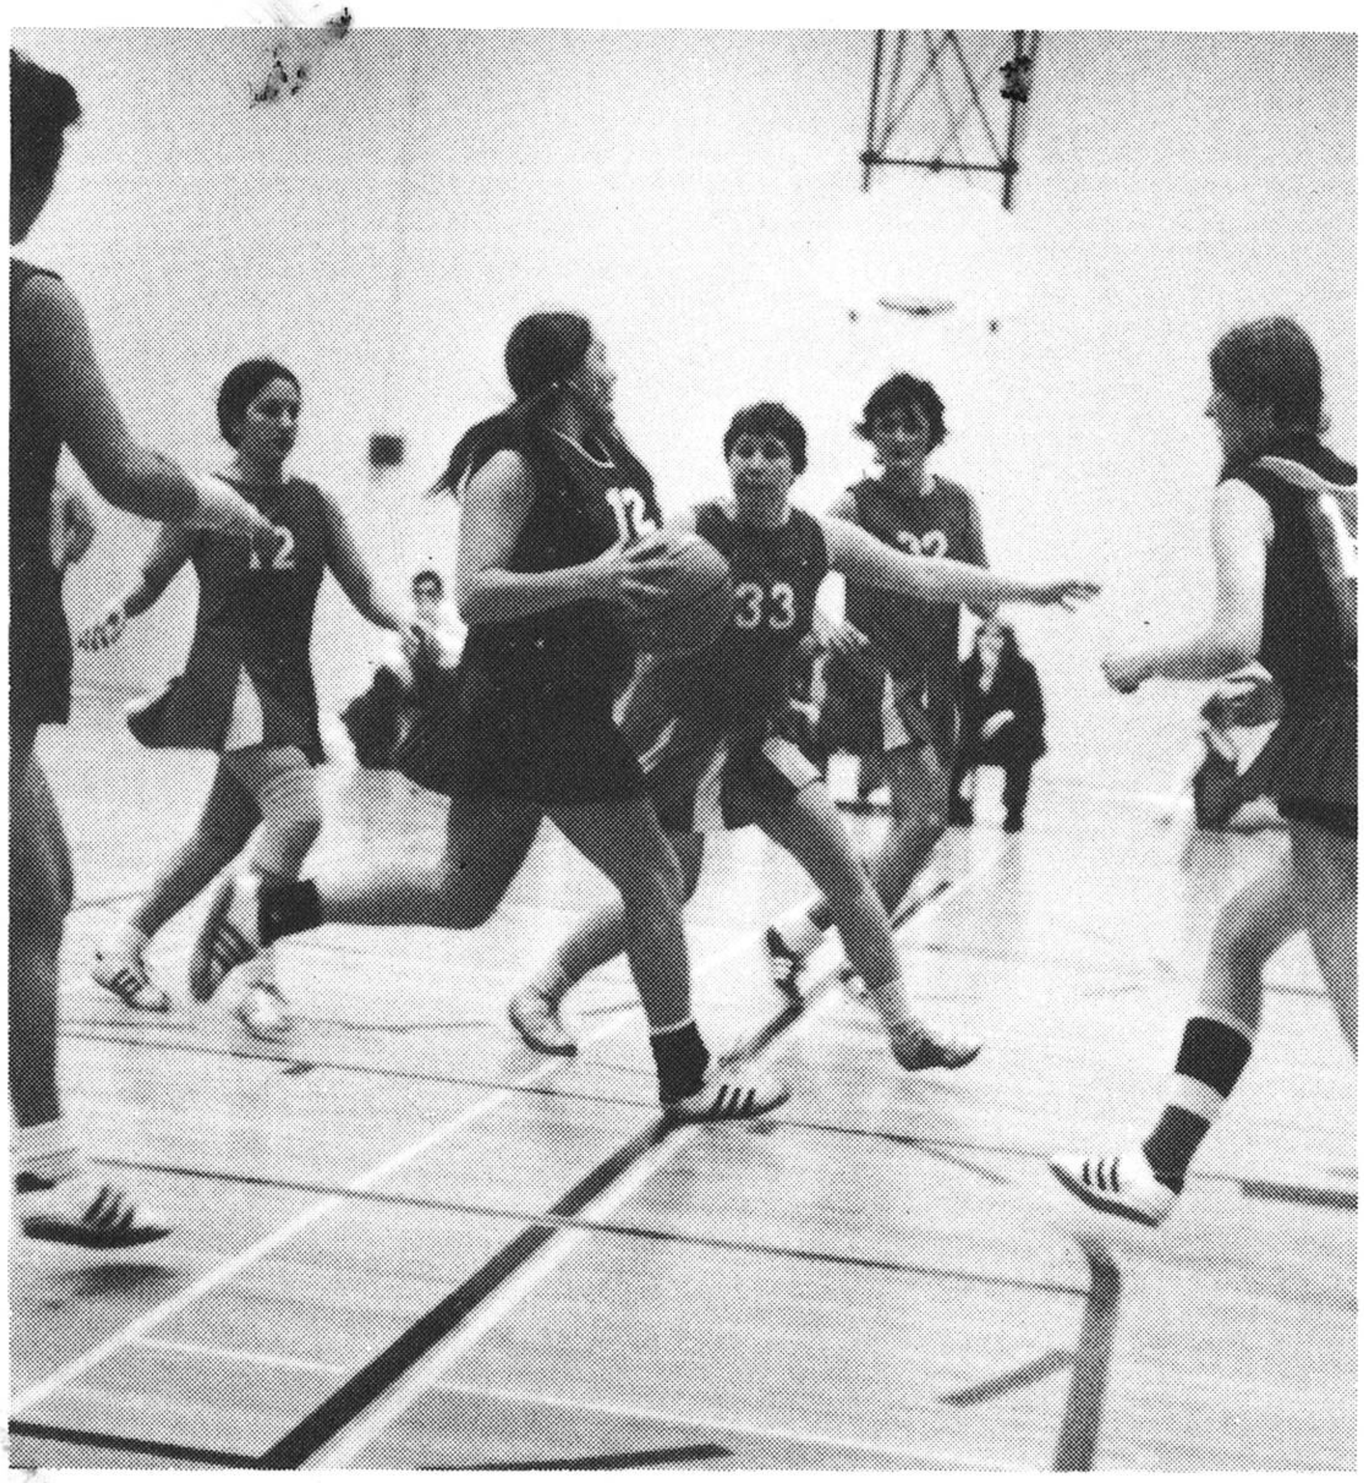

Weston girls' senior team this year finished the season with a six and two won – lost record and second place in the league standings. Overall it was an excellent season and our team had some terrific shooters and strong runners. Injuries unfortunately plagued a few of our top players. However, the strong survived and beat York Memo in a crucial end of season game.

You might think coaching junior basketball is a real headache. . .

With our shortest players running beneath our opponents, our top scorer with six points all season, and a perfect seven losses and zero wins, it can only however, lead to a lot of fun.

Thanks to all the girls for their efforts in making the team what it was.

GIRLS' SENIOR VOLLEYBALL TEAM – YORK LEAGUE CHAMPIONS

"One way to achieve success is to behave like a duck . . . . Keep calm and unruffled on the surface . . . . But paddle like the devil underneath." This group of girls, after early season difficulties got together and became a "Heart and Soul" team. In dramatic fashion, with great determination, the team brought Weston a championship.

JUNIOR VOLLEYBALL TEAM YORK LEAGUE CHAMPIONS

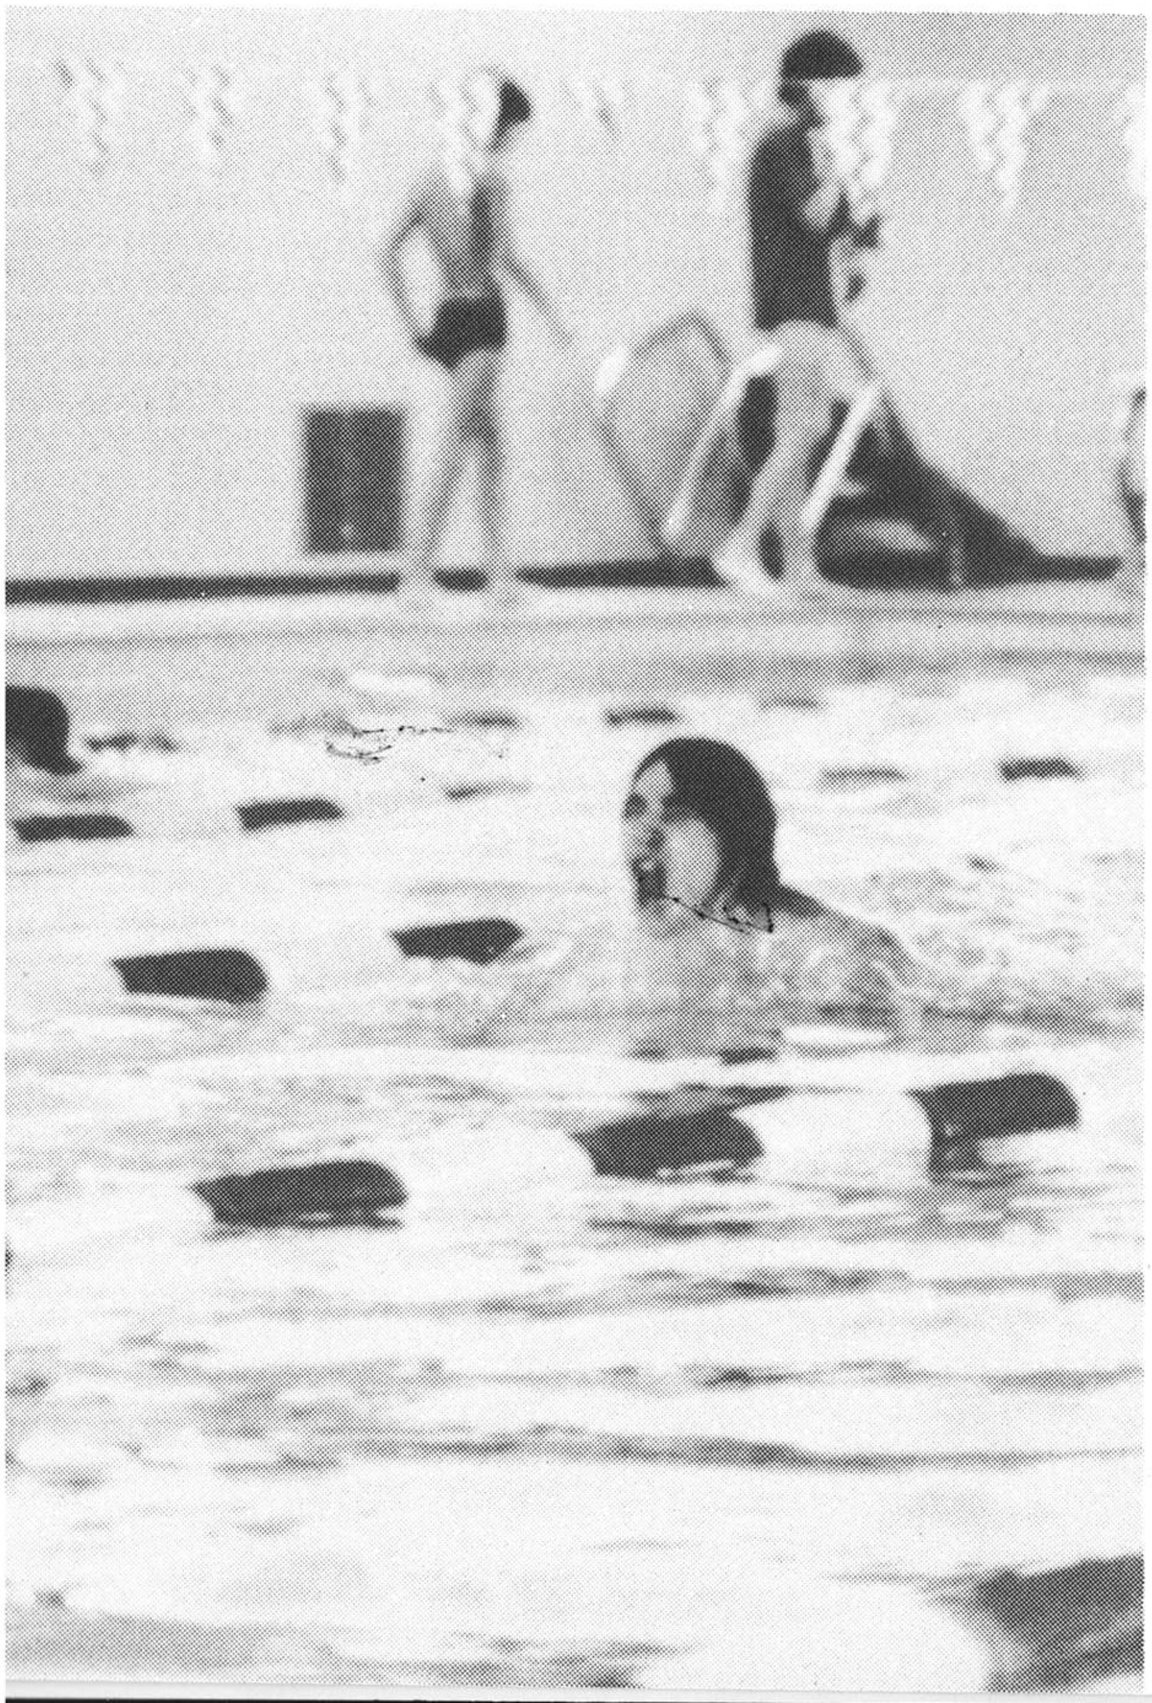

These girls are not only good looking but they can sure play a fantastic game of volleyball. New uniforms were broken in with a winning season for the juniors. They only lost one game in the season and they continued their great playing by winning the York Championship. A great team effort and many thanks to Mrs. Paton, Donna Reade, and Jean Davidson for their time and effort.

SWIMTEAMS

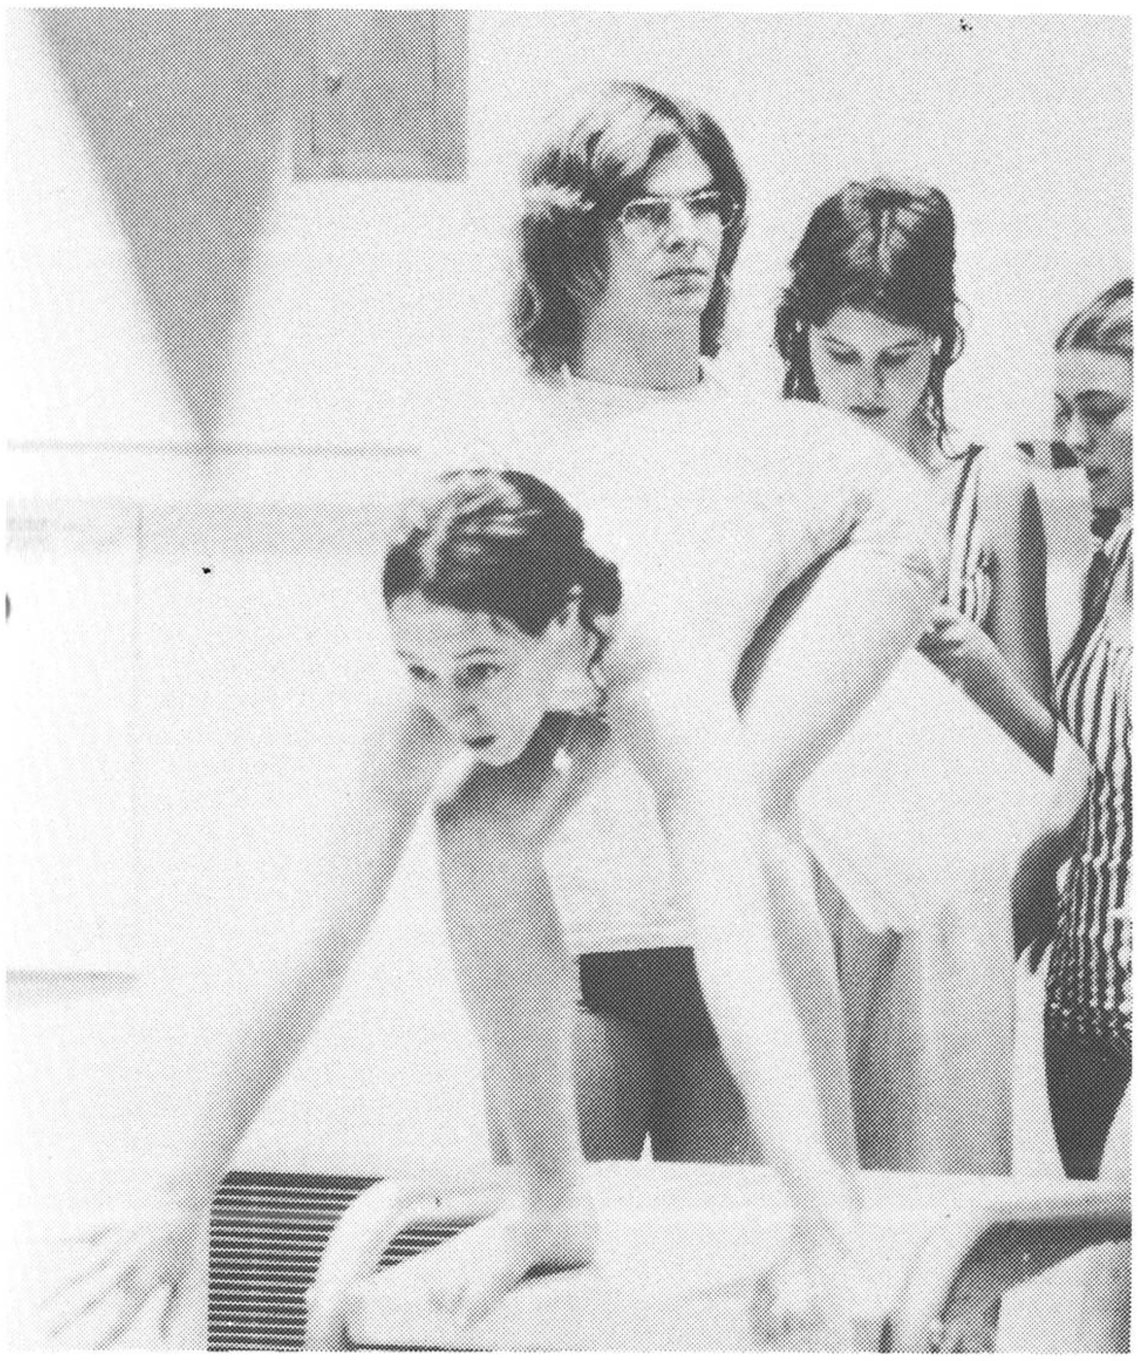

GIRLS' SWIM TEAM

The girls' swim team won the York Championship.
What else need we say?

BOYS' SWIM TEAM

Our team enjoyed their most successful season yet with our Bantams winning the York Championships, and our Junior-Senior team moving up to a fifth place ranking of the top 17 schools in Toronto. No doubt the several new recruits from York Memorial and George Harvey helped, but our overall success had to be due to our intensive training schedule which had the boys swimming over 300 miles per week as a team!

The season opened in November with our annual Blue and White inter-squad meet, won by the White team for the second year, 91 to 64. On December 13, we hosted York Memorial in an exhibition meet and were edged out 120 to 112 despite winning both Bantam and Senior divisions.

Early in January, our dual-meet season began with a loss to the Toronto Champions, U.T.S., 171 to 129 at the Hart House pool, University of Toronto. We then swam five victories in a row, defeating in turn, all remaining York schools. Beating Vaughan Road 147 to 87, and George Harvey 134 to 96, we then had sweet revenge defeating York Memorial 126 to 115. In a rematch, Harvey was beaten again 122 to 104, and then Runnymede, in our strongest showing of the year, 180 to 114.

By the end of January, the boys were in their peak of training and more importantly, had made their mark in Toronto swimming circles — we had been invited to take part in two high calibre meets! The first took us to the University of Waterloo where our best showing was 13th in the 400 Free Style Relay (Biller, D. Funnell, B. Bennett, Steenson), although we did set 7 team records in 7 events! The second meet was the York Memorial Invitational Relays. Unfortunately, bad starts disqualified us in the first three events, and consequently we finished low in the standings.

But on February 14th, our Bantams won the York Championships, handing U.T.S. their first defeat in four years! This was our first league title since we began swimming three years ago. Heroes of the meet were Dave Funnell, Rick Thomson, and Dave Snider who all won their events, all in new record times.

Two days later, our Juniors and Seniors improved on last year's showing, by placing third in the York Championships with our Seniors finishing in second place behind U.T.S. who won for the ninth straight time. Stars of the meet were Bill Brockbank, Warren Beech, and Larry Lapointe with two seconds each, and Mark Hayes with two thirds. These boys, along with twelve others, qualified for the Toronto championships.

The T.D.I.A.A. meet was held at Cedarbrae Collegiate, where we learned that we had qualified more boys than any other Toronto school! The competition was extremely keen, and our team did a fine job in placing fifth overall, and third in the Senior division. Larry Lapointe and Mark Hayes again swam strong races placing third in their events, but our Senior Free Style Relay team (Biller, B. Bennett, Hayes, Presidente) won in record time, (1:43:2) moving themselves to number one ranking in Toronto, and thereby qualifying for the Ontario Championships. The O.F.S.A.A. meet was held at McMaster University March 10, where again the boys improved on their time.

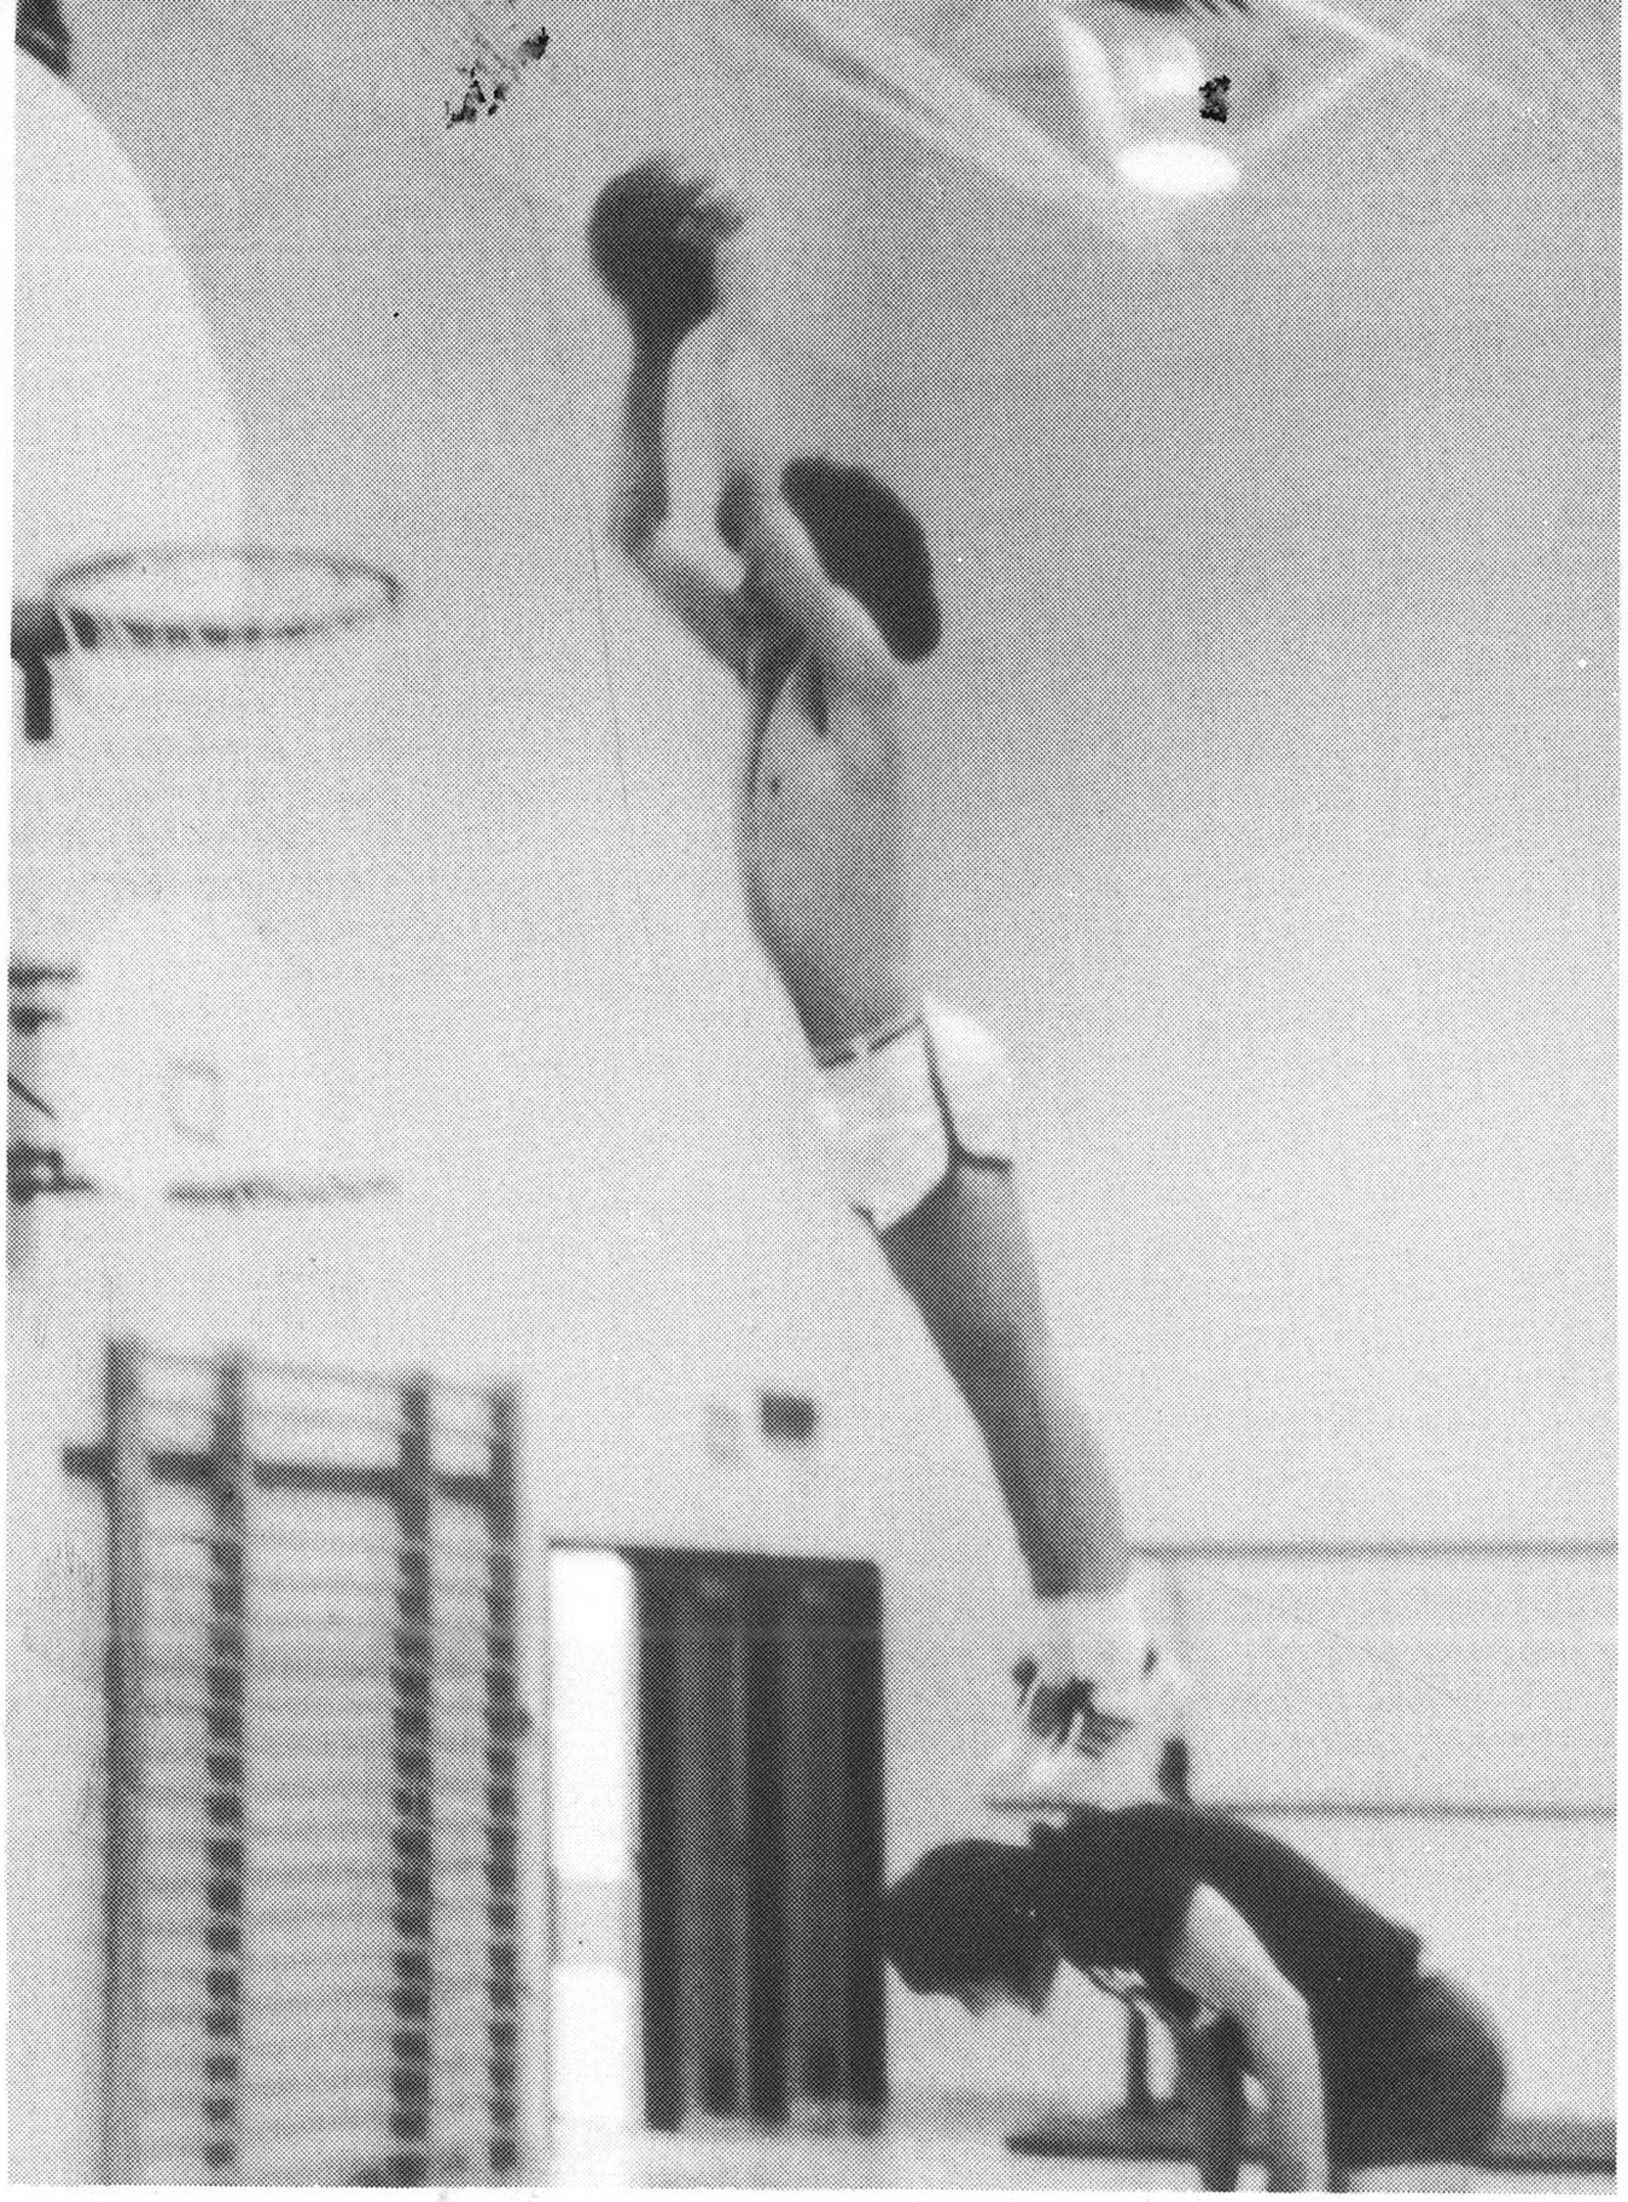

In total our team broke 28 out of 33 team records, placed third in Junior, second in Senior and won the Bantam Championships in York, placed fifth in all Toronto, qualified boys for competition at the Ontario level, and now holds five York records.

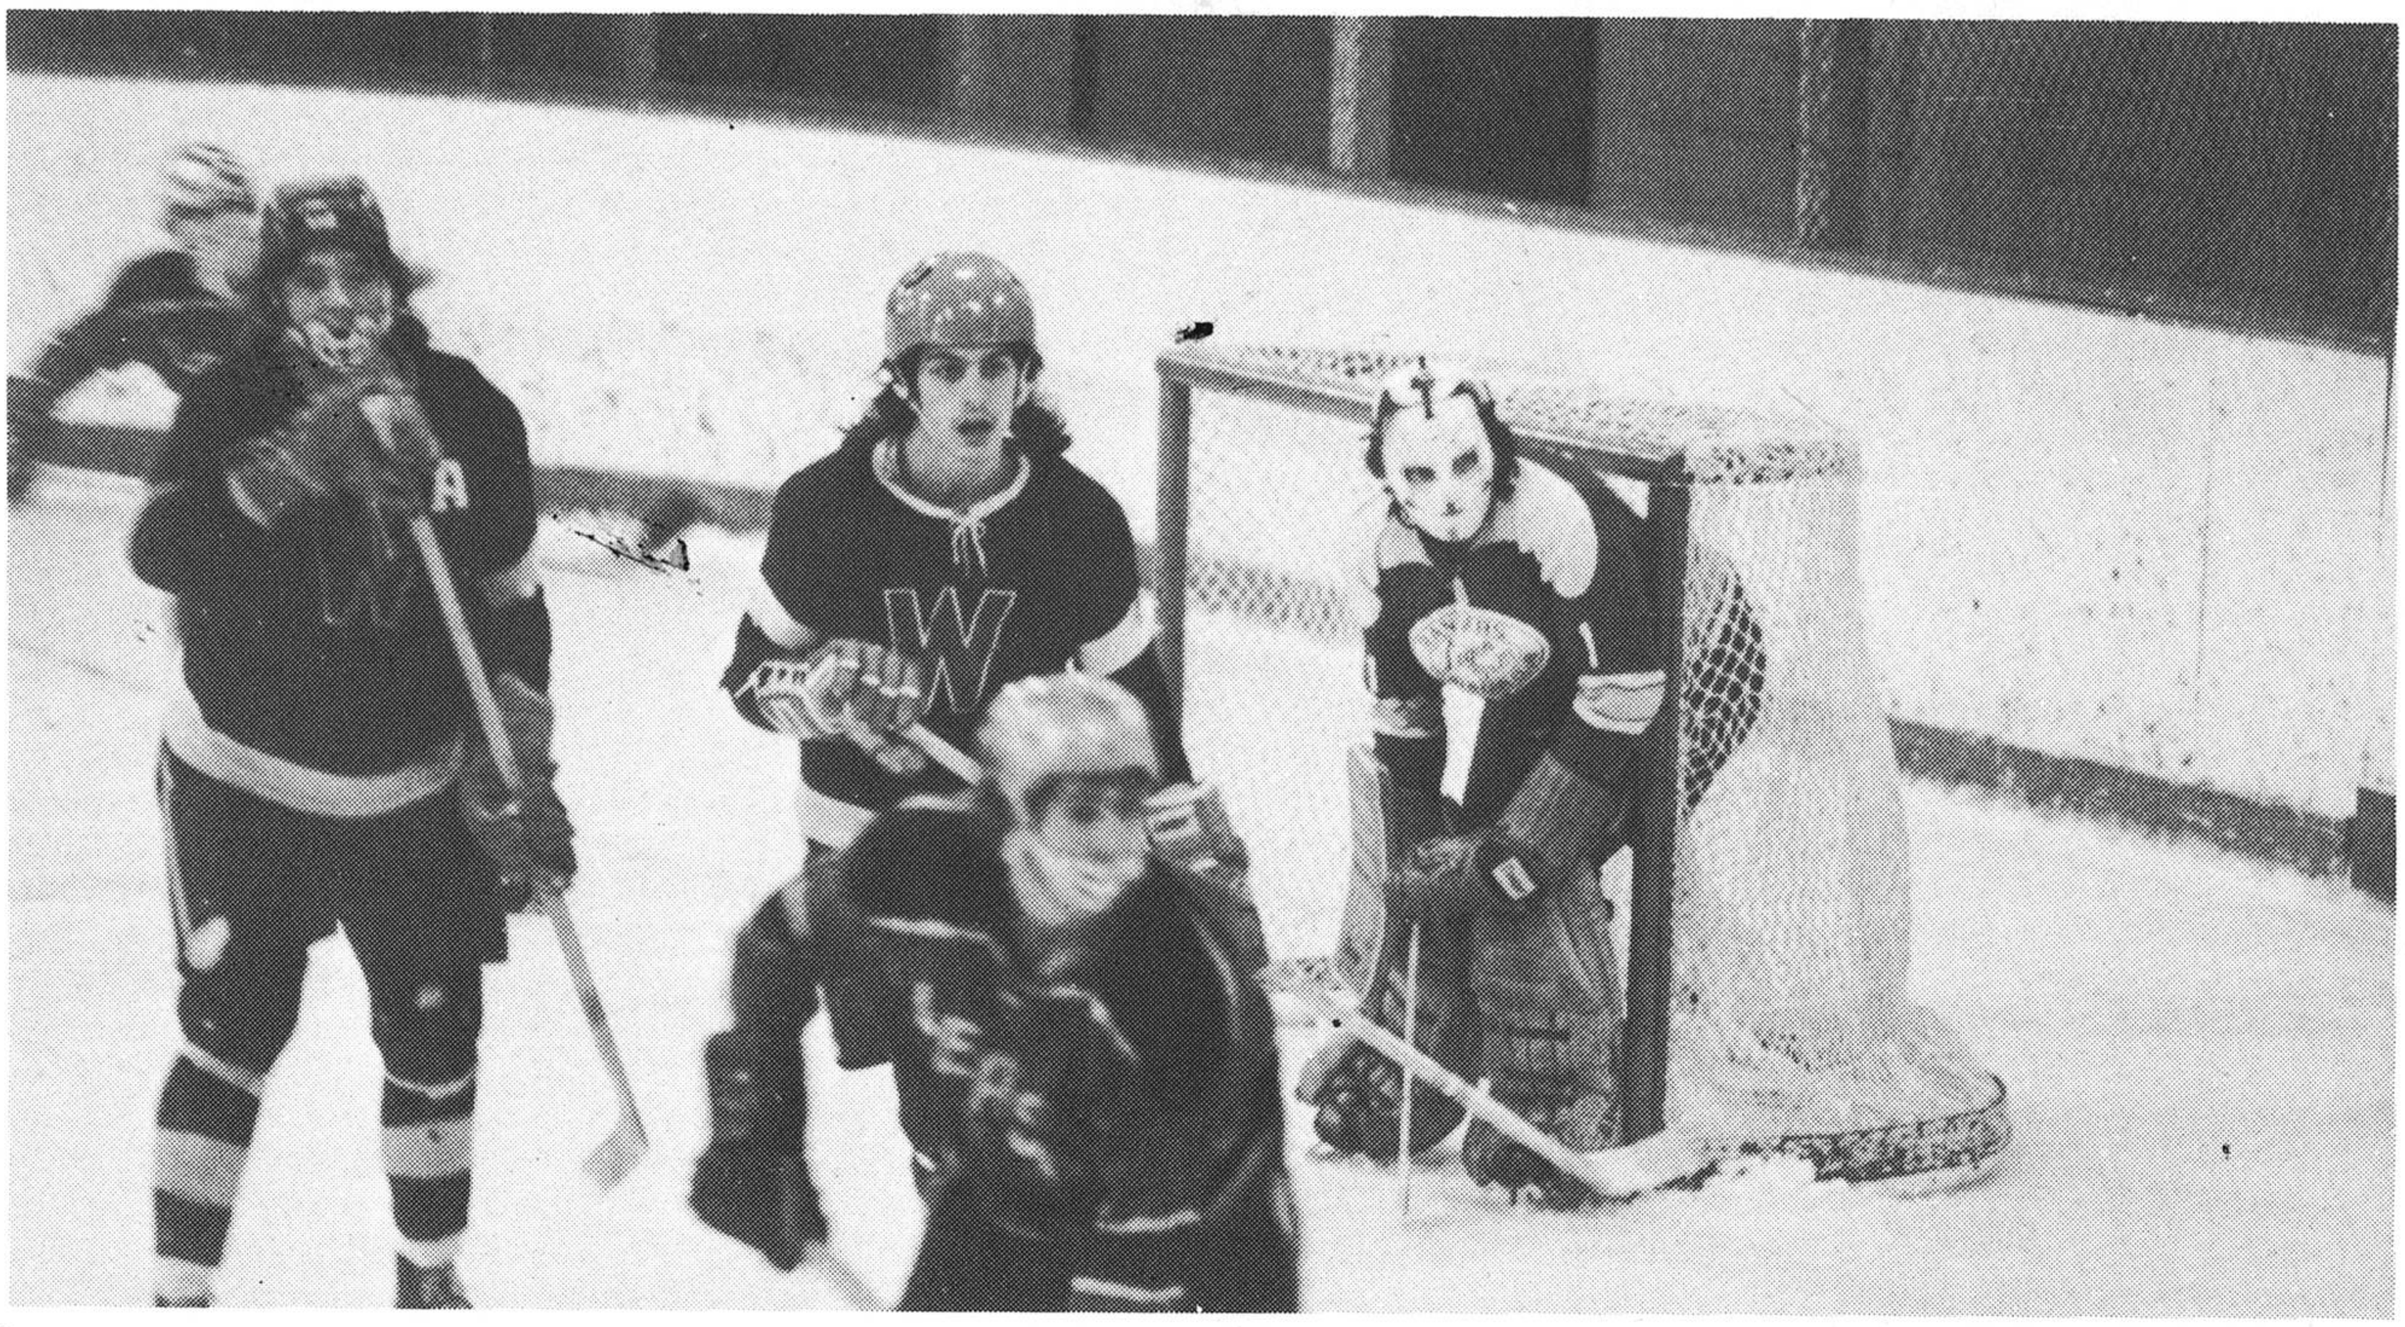

Our 46 team members would like to thank the many students who acted as officials at our fourteen meets, our statistician Cathie Ashbourne who followed us all over Toronto (and Ontario), and the students of Weston for their support this year.

basket-ball

After John Martini was asked by a referee at George Harvey to take off his shoulder pads, and, after our one league-win this season, the team began to play more like a team. Our statisticians reported that the number of passes made during a game and the number of plays completed during games increased steadily. Although the men did not win any more games, they were all close and hard fought.

Our one official All-Star player was John Popofski. However, we feel that his guard partner Gary Hutchison must have some mention as an exceptional ball handler and shooter.

This year's team was one of the best in recent years, and was loaded with top calibre players. The team surged with a 5-1 victory over U.T.S, 5-4 thriller over York Memorial and 3-2 over East York. By the time the Christmas holidays came, the team had a record of 6 wins, 0 losses, and 1 tie. In the second half of the season the team faltered and was crushed 7-2 by George Harvey. However, under coach "punch" Both and assistant coach Norm Dodgson the team went undefeated for the rest of the season, and finished with a 10-1-3 record and first place. In the semi-finals of the playoffs, Weston lost the first game of a two-game total goal series 7-5 to Mimico. However the second game was a convincing 7-1 victory for Weston and Weston took the series 12-8. However, in a 2 out of 3 final against York Memorial, Weston lost two straight, (7-5 and 2-1) thus ending the season.

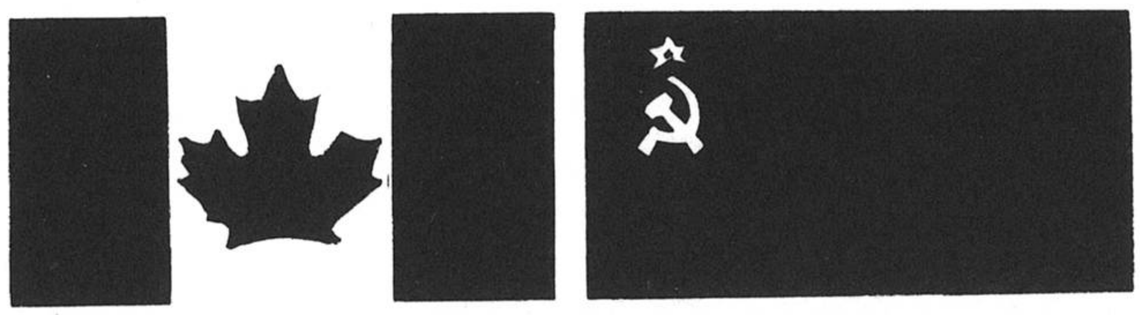

The team consisted of players who have the makings of professional hockey players. The "me-two" punch of Bill Shumka and Gerry Bloomfield in goal, frustrated opposition by continually thwarting their shots. The defencemen (Bruce and Lloyd Bennett, Brian Martin, Craig Stewart, Bill Duncan, and Rick Bince) forced the opposition-forwards to keep their heads up whenever they came into their zone.

Our forwards were all deadly sharpshooters. The "fearsome threesome" of Dan Walker, Keith Evans and Dave Brennan were a constant thorn in the opposition's side. They counted the majority of the Weston scoring, but the Ted Bonham, Ian Young, Ken Evans line and the Mike Whalen, George Cowie, Rick McCloskey line also handled themselves admirably. John Hooper, the statistician, and Dave Edwards, the manager, were both a great help to the coaches and the players in handling the minor problems which arose during the season. This year was a success but next year will be even better as many of the players will be returning and a city championship will be the goal of players and coaches.

RUSSIA VS. CANADA 1972

One of the greatest sport spectacles of the past decade occurred in September with the Russia - Canada hockey series. Perhaps no event has done more to unite the people of our country than this great sporting event. For the 8th game in Moscow, most school activity ceased as students gathered around T.V. sets throughout the school. When the Canadian team arrived in Moscow they were definite underdogs and almost to the point of being in disfavour with the Canadian people after unpopular episodes in Sweden and poor showings here in Canada.

What was the mood of the Russian people towards this great series? We asked Mr. Bob Nadin, a member of the Weston Collegiate staff who spent two weeks in Russia just prior to the series. Mr. Nadin was invited by the Russian Sports Federation to conduct a series of clinics for the Russian referees in Moscow and Riga and to supervise the officiating at a tournament in Riga, Latvia. (Yes, the Russians even have tournaments in the summer). "The Russian people have great admiration for the skills of the Canadian hockey player and seemed somewhat overwhelmed by the fact that their heroes were to play the great Canadian professionals. After watching an exhibition intersquad game in Moscow before the series, the Russians did not look impressive. However, I was continually questioned regarding the outcome of the series. In a situation like this, you must be very diplomatic with your answer," stated Mr. Nadin upon his return.

Hockey is the number one sport in Russia. The great dedication of the Russian people to this game and every other activity in which they participate is verified by the tremendous improvement in the Russian play during the last ten years.

JUNIOR FOOTBALL

The juniors, under the excellent coaching team comprised of Messrs. Nadin, Both and the new addition of Mr. Scorgie, had another very successful year: the win-loss record at the end of the regular season was a proud 6-0. Much of this was due to coach Scorgie's wonder-working on the line.

The offence, led by Rob Thompson and Steve Meek scored more points than any other team in the league. This was complimented by a very strong defence that allowed only one touchdown during season play.

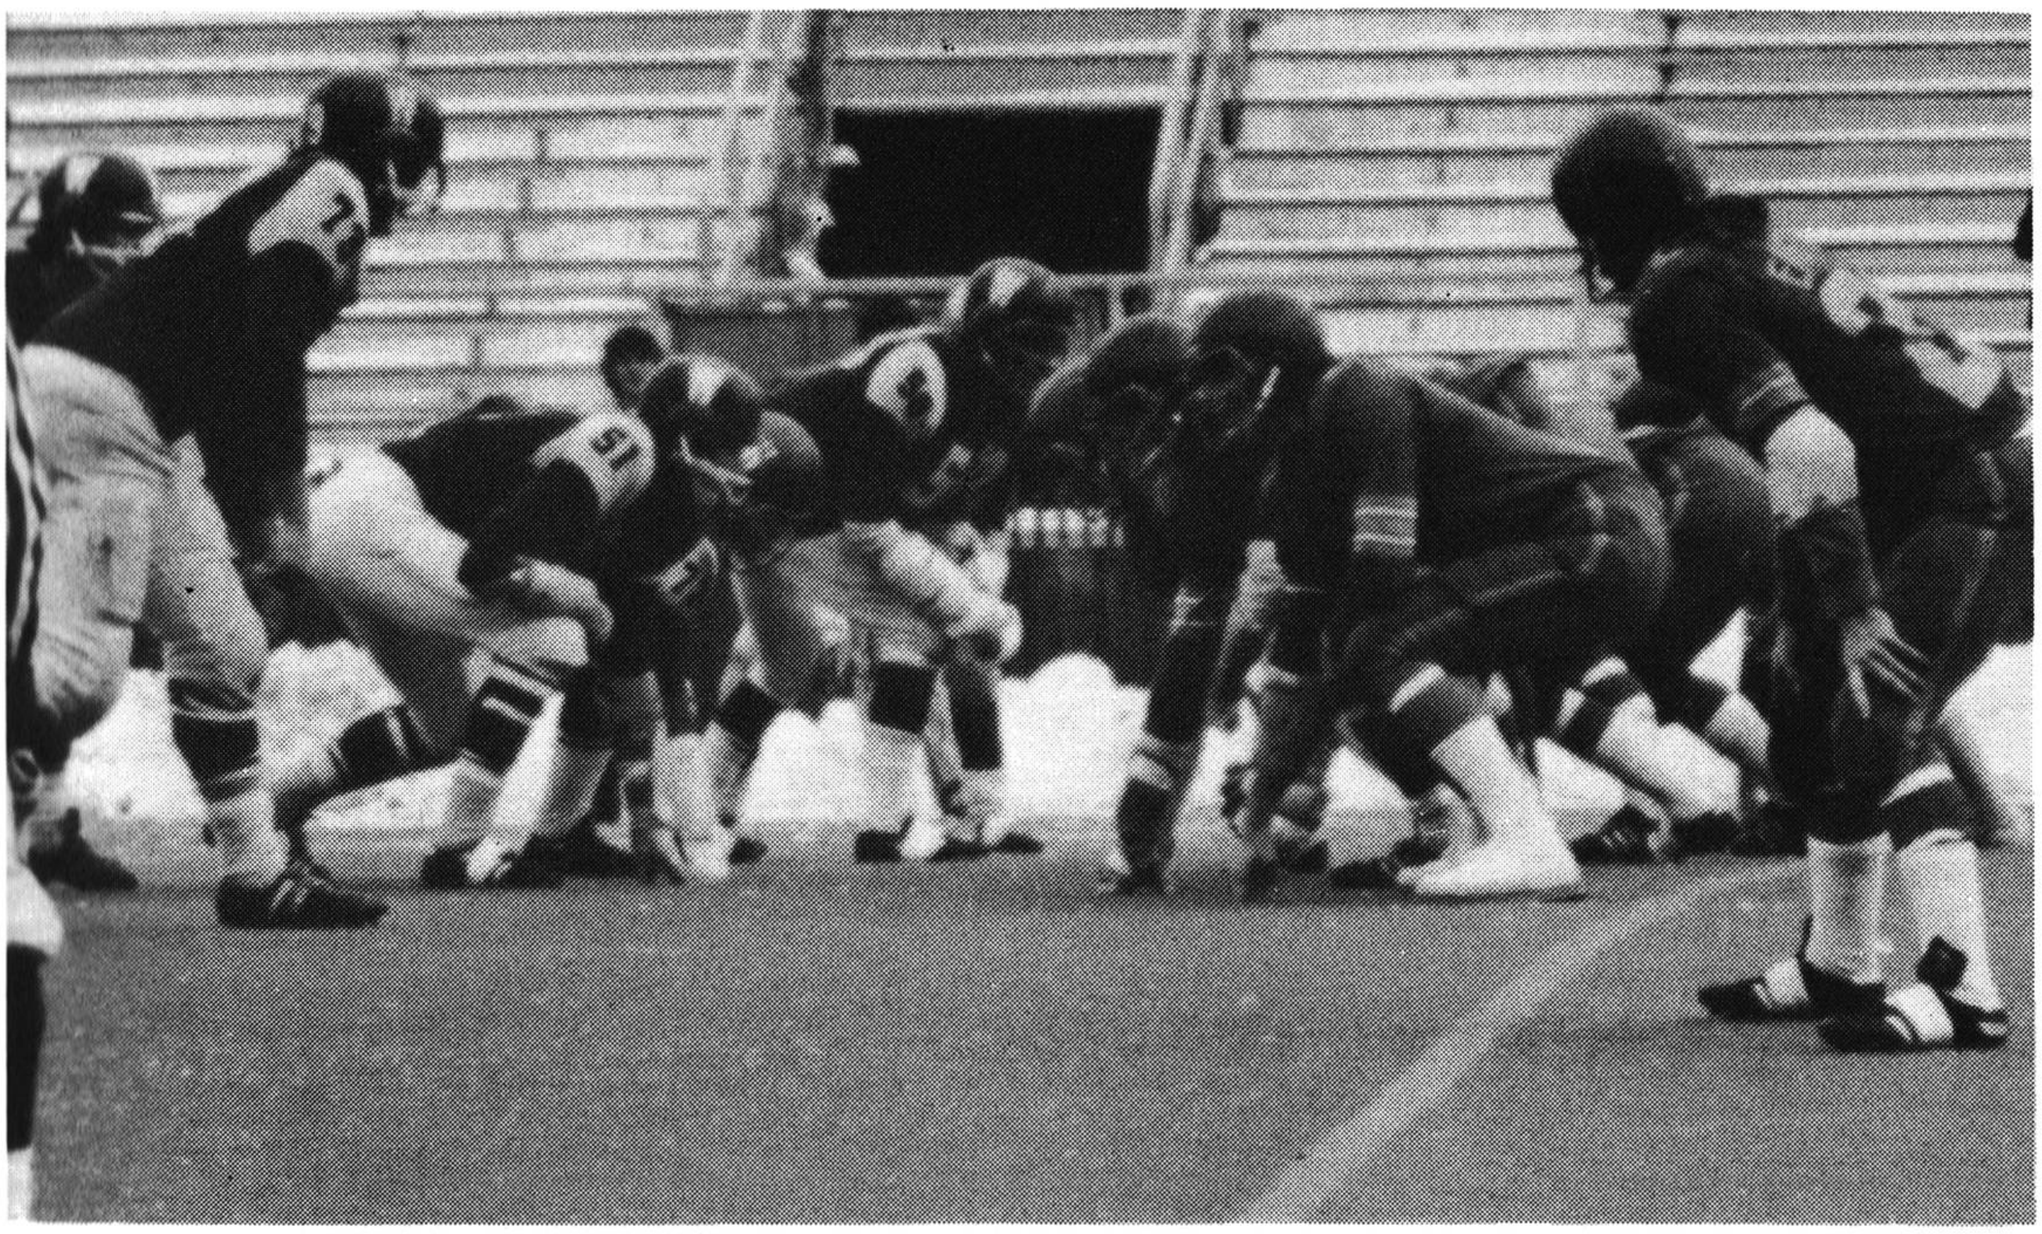

It looked good for the Junior Ironmen throughout the playoffs. In the semi-finals Vaughan Road was defeated in a close, well-fought battle at the C.N.E. Stadium. Then on to the finals! Playing against East York (also at the C.N.E.), the juniors seemed unable to get untracked in the first quarter. This led to the fumble that enabled East York to score the touchdown and eventually claim the championship.

The most outstanding feature of the team was undoubtedly the spirit among its members. It is in this same spirit that the players acknowledge and thank the hard-working coaches and loyal fans. Perhaps next year a championship for Weston!

SENIOR FOOTBALL

It looked like the Senior Ironmen were going to have another disasterous year when Spring training started. But under a new coaching staff of Mr. Bruce, Mr. Dodgson and Mr. Dichter, 28 individuals developed the kind of team spirit that helped to produce a very successful season. After losing the opening game by only one point, the players were determined to forge ahead. They worked late into the evenings on offensive plays, led by quarterback George Cowie. The defence was led through their drills by Ted Schade and John Martini.

The offence began to click with running backs Doug Broadfoot, John Martini and Bruce Cole picking up good gains behind the improved blocking of our offensive line. The defence, nicknamed "the never cross gang," shocked the other teams by allowing only two touchdowns all season. Rick Bince's touchdown (as defensive guard!) created the surprise of the season for Weston fans as well as the opposition.

The Ironmen moved into the semi-finals against the previously undefeated Runnymede Redmen. The Ironmen turned in an excellent team effort by winning 34-0. The defence set up three touchdowns and held the Redmen to a stand-still.

The final game was played on the "mod sod" of the CNE against East York Goliaths. It was a hard fought contest which the Ironmen lost, team spirit and effort prevailing even in the dying minutes of the game. It was a very successful and self satisfying year for our Senior Ironmen. Next year, with some graduating juniors and a few returning veterans, the team hopes to aspire to that team spirit and pride that helped produce the winning season of this school year for Weston C.I., and perhaps too, a championship.

in memoriam:

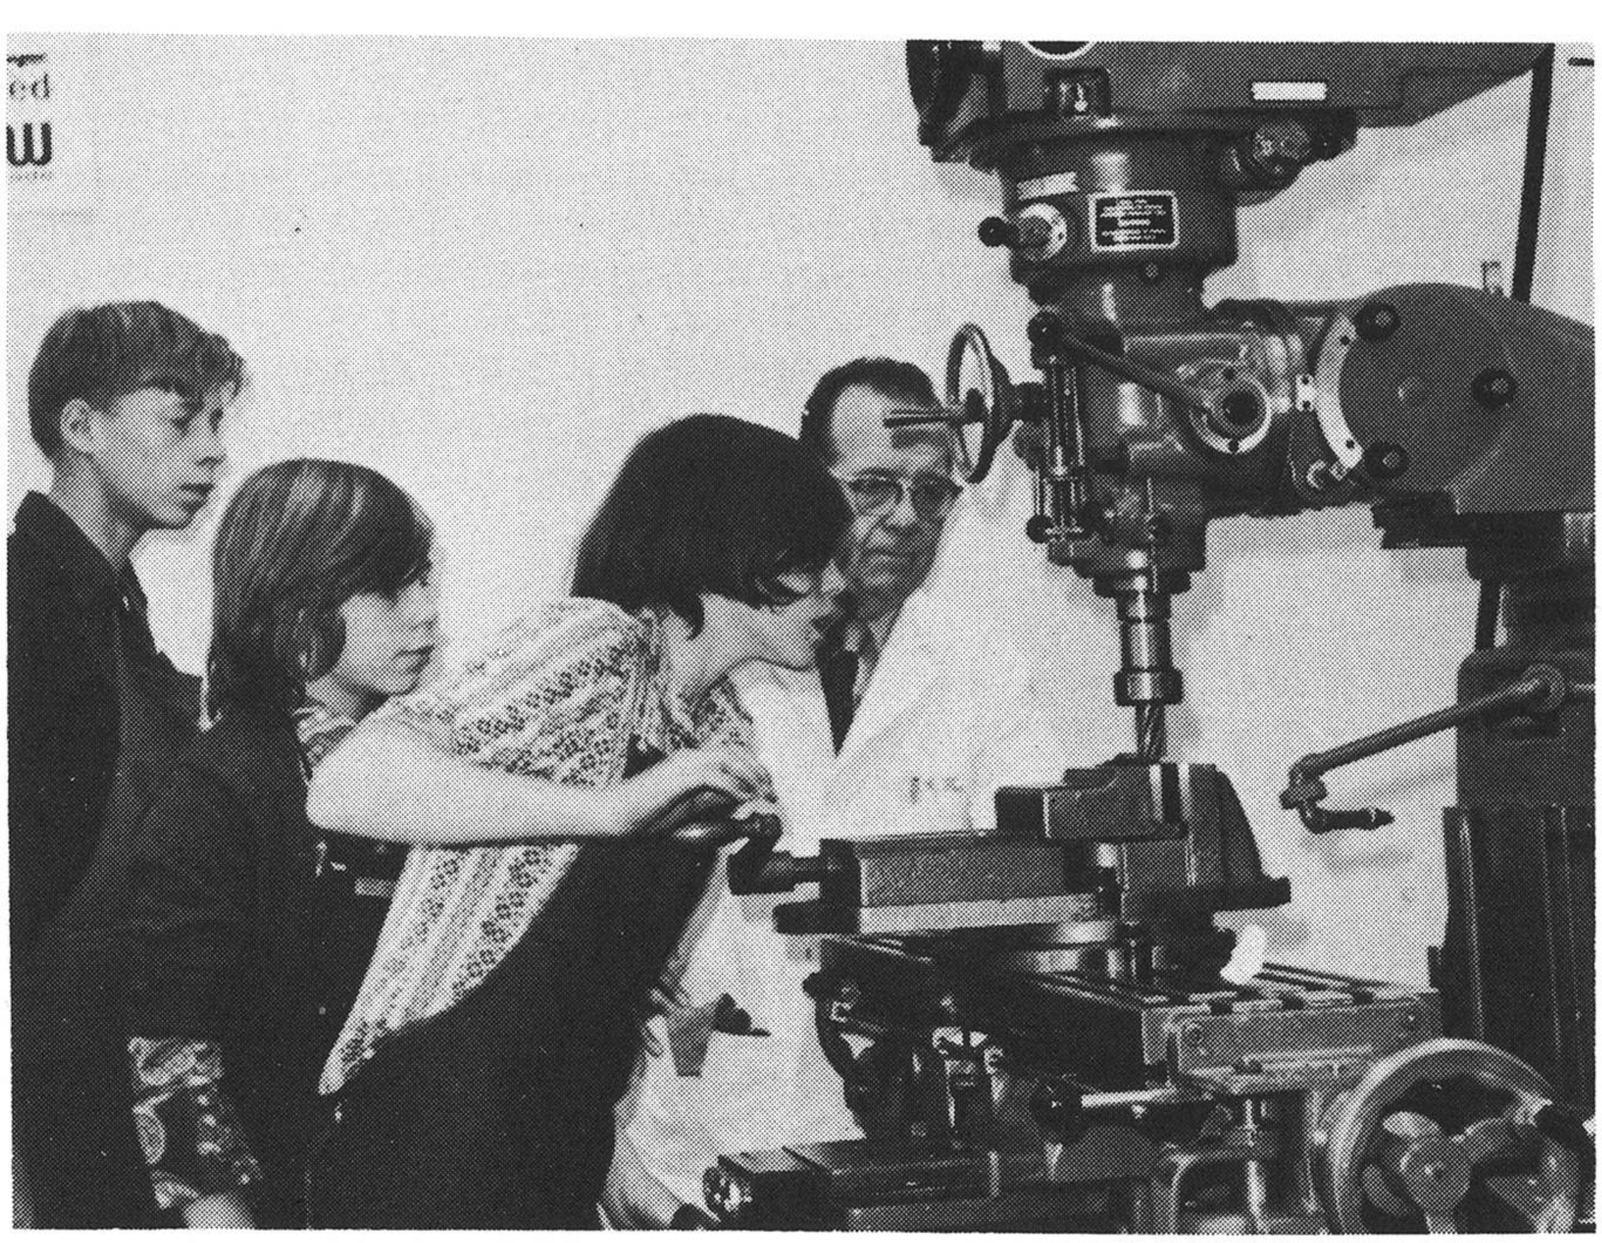

JOHN E. HOEY died in Toronto on February 1, 1973 after a long series of illnesses. He was born and educated in Hamilton, Ontario. As a young child, he suffered from polio and having overcome its effects, Mr. Hoey went on to become a Canadian champion swimmer, participating in several marathon contests in Canada and the U.S.A.

During World War II, he was awarded the 'Order of the British Empire' and was made an Honourary Commodore for his demonstrated valour in action while serving on the destroyer H.M.C.S. Ottawa. During this action, he sustained wounds that were to plague him during the remaining years of his life.

Upon graduation from high school, Mr. Hoey served his apprenticeship as a tool and dye maker with the Ford Motor Company; it was in this same capacity that he taught and served the students at Weston Collegiate for twenty-two years. He was also very actively involved with Teachers' Federation activities in the 1950's having served for a number of years on the executive in various capacities.

The mastery of his subject, his devotion to the welfare of his students and his concern for colleagues, will long be remembered by those who knew John Hoey well. We, at Weston, will remember him as an unselfish citizen, a warm and generous person and a fine teacher: a worthy recipient of the school's highest award; the White 'W'.

ROCK AND ROLL REVIVAL

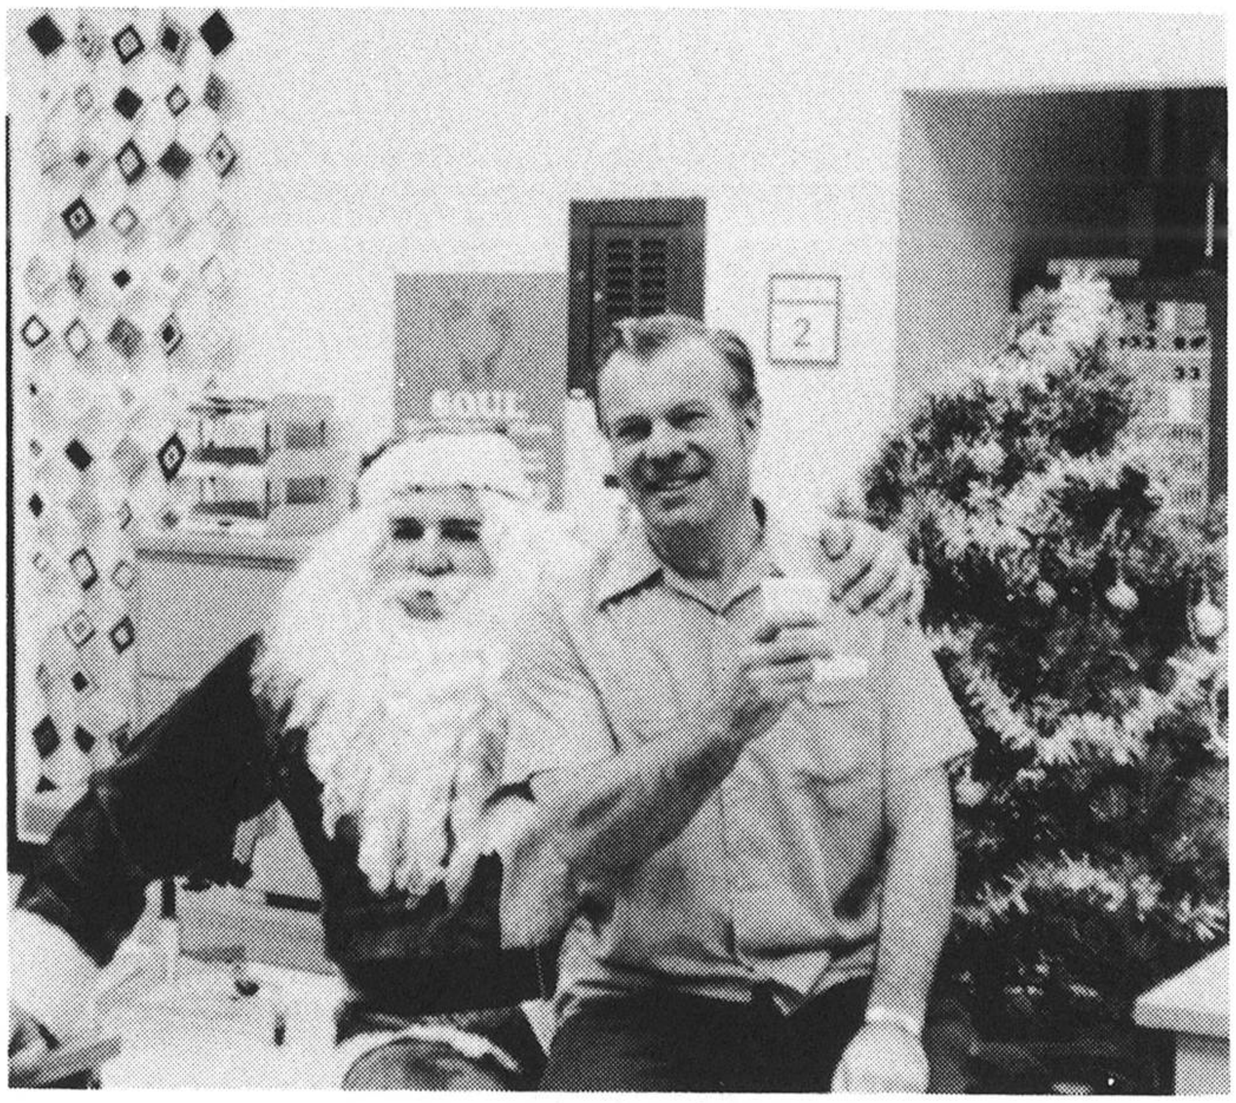

Almost everyone was at Weston's Rock and Roll Revival. The music was supplied by Weston's own disc jockeys, Nils Johanson and Mr. "Cool Man" Nicholls. A tube of Brylcream was given to "Chicago" Bloomfield for being the greasiest guy of the evening and the greasiest chick, Ingrid Lubgans won a pack of bobby-pins. The coolest couple of the evening were Leroy "The Man" Hayes and Itala Oppedisano. Leroy was awarded a pack of combs and Itala got a jar of Dippity-Doo. The highlight of the evening had to be when Miss Sue Berneman and Mr. Norm Dodgson started off a bunny hop around the dance floor to the tune of "Green Door." Many thanks to everyone who came out and to all those who helped make it a memorable night. It was "cool, daddio — cool," and all too soon came to an end.

Jolly St. Nick (better known as Nick Misetic) arrived at Weston, "spreading" his Christmas cheer. At left he is seen with Bruce Cole (on left) and Rob Thompson (on right), Linda Murphy and Judy Nichols (seated); below with Mr. Smith and at bottom sharing a joke with Mr. Hill.

Further cheer was spread to those in need with Christmas baskets collected and packaged by Weston students. (Opposite page).

outdoor education day

This year education at Weston C.I. was not restricted to the confines of the school, but for one day included anything from indoor bowling to outdoor skiing, in Québec, no less! This day was made possible by the selling of over two tons of chocolate bars, leaving students with a total profit of approximately $3,500 (see photo), with which to finance Outdoor Education Day.

The day began at 6:30 a.m. with a breakfast of pancakes, served by Chef Hill and his two assistants, Chefs Crepp and Heard.

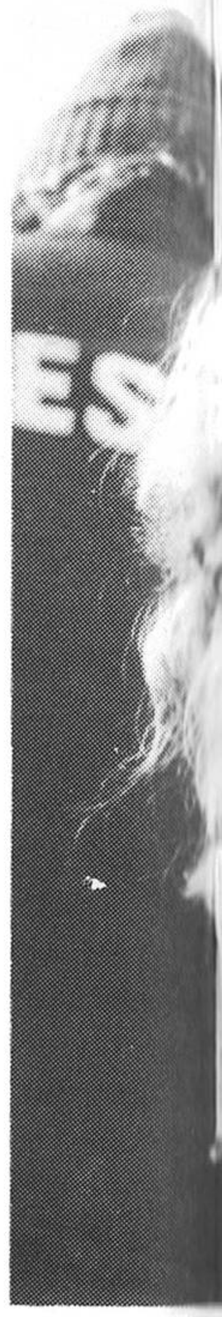

Bowlers, ice skaters, hockey players and roller skaters filled the indoor arenas, while the more adventurous souls aimed straight down Mount St. Louis. The Formosa crew had a fantastic day cross-country skiing, while the trail blazers in the Don Valley and the crack shots and orienteerers of Cold Creek looked professional in their activities.

The largest group for Outdoor Education Day was the one headed for the Plantation Bowl on Dundas. Arriving shortly after 9:30, the group took over the two floors of alleys and formed their teams. Mr. Nicholls then ceremoniously rolled the first ball - into the gutter. The day had already begun with gales of laughter.

For the next three hours the 250 students had a great time bowling and competing against each other. In the end, Terry Foster, with a score of 627 and Sue Pocheka, 592, were the high triple winners. Carla Caputo and Sam Los won the highest single game trophies with scores of 204 and 224 respectively. The high single games by teachers were bowled by Mr. Lovinsky with 163 and Mrs. Greenberg with 182. At one o'clock the students returned to the buses and headed for an afternoon of hockey at Centennial Arena, or to Forest Hill Arena for pleasure skating.

A group of sixty avid skaters and hockey players set out for Centennial Arena that morning. After an hour of pleasure skating the group assembled into teams for the up-coming hockey games. The games at times seemed somewhat chaotic, but all those who participated enjoyed themselves.

A second group of skaters spent a fun day at the Terrace. The morning was spent ice skating and in the afternoon those who dared tried the art of roller skating.

Snow conditions at Mount St. Louis were quite good, though some hills had icy patches and a few slushy sections which developed in the afternoon. The chaos of our mass arrival was sorted out in reasonable time, with those having their own equipment getting onto the slopes fairly quickly, while the rest found boots and skis to rent. Much to the surprise of many students the skis they were able to rent were about four feet long and there were no poles provided. These special skis are used to teach the parallel turn. In no time at all it was a common sight to see Weston students flying down the various slopes on those short skis, some out of control looking for a spot to crash while others looked as if they were turning up to challenge Jean-Claude. No bones were broken, though there were many bumps and bruises. For most, it was a fine outing to be long-remembered.

No one thought cross-country skiing at Formosa would be as much fun as it was. Besides learning to ski cross-hill, the students were bolstered by the brewery tour and they managed to survive the day in good "spirits."

Even though it was a little muddy for snowshoeing and orienteering everyone who went to Cold Creek made the best of it and had a good time. Upon arrival, the students were divided into two groups. They spent the early part of the day target-shooting and skeet-shooting (see photo). The rest of the afternoon was spent learning the art of orienteering.

The students came back to the school after their activities for a dinner of hot dogs and hot chocolate. By seven o'clock, everyone's energy and spirits revived, it was off to the dance with Mr. Nicholls as disc-jockey. Everyone quickly caught up on everybody else's adventures and a great time was had by all. It was a very successful conclusion to a very successful day and all would agree that this fantastic experience should be repeated next year.

INSIGHT

This year may mark the end of one era and the beginning of another. The successful signing of a Peace Treaty ending the war in Vietnam, may bring to an end a period of almost constant global conflict which dates back to the beginning of World War II. The recent death of prominent statesmen brings to mind these events of the past:

Former President Harry S. Truman of the United States had the triple responsibility of authorizing the atomic bombing of Hiroshima and Nagasaki, negotiating the peace terms of World War II and conducting the Korean War of 1950. Former Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson of Canada, exercising leadership, utilized the United Nations' peace-keeping force in bringing peace to the Middle East following the Suez Canal crisis of 1957. Former President Lyndon B. Johnson, coming to power after the untimely assassination of President John F. Kennedy, led the United States deeper into the Vietnam conflict through escalation of the war effort.

It is yet too soon to determine whether world peace will be firmly established, but there are hopeful signs that the three major powers—China, United States, and the Soviet Union — finally realize the futility of war.

The Vietnam war has had little direct effect on our lives as Canadians. The world now has an opportunity to divert its energies from a process of destruction to one of construction. We can, however, play a part in this rebuilding process through our economic assistance and our role as member nation in the supervisory control commission in Vietnam.

Looking out the window of my own private bedroom
Hundreds of raindrops falling in place,
All the colourful flowers dripping
Waters splashing against the sandy beach.
Sun coming out shines down on a running stream
A golden orange yellow reflection sinking slowly into the lake.

Hockin's "44's"

The sky's falling tears
bring cool dampness to the field of flowers
Her soft skin shivers
with the sting of the mountain air
She retreats to her world leaving the coldness of the lake behind.

HOW SAD

How sad .....
To never see the sun
Capture a flower in bloom,
To never be blinded by the colours of summer
Or awed at the golden brown of an autumn day.
How sad to be blind.

How sad .....
Not to accept people for what they are,
To close your heart to others
To live in a world of hate not love,
To see everything in black and white.
How sad to be blind.

ADVERTISE

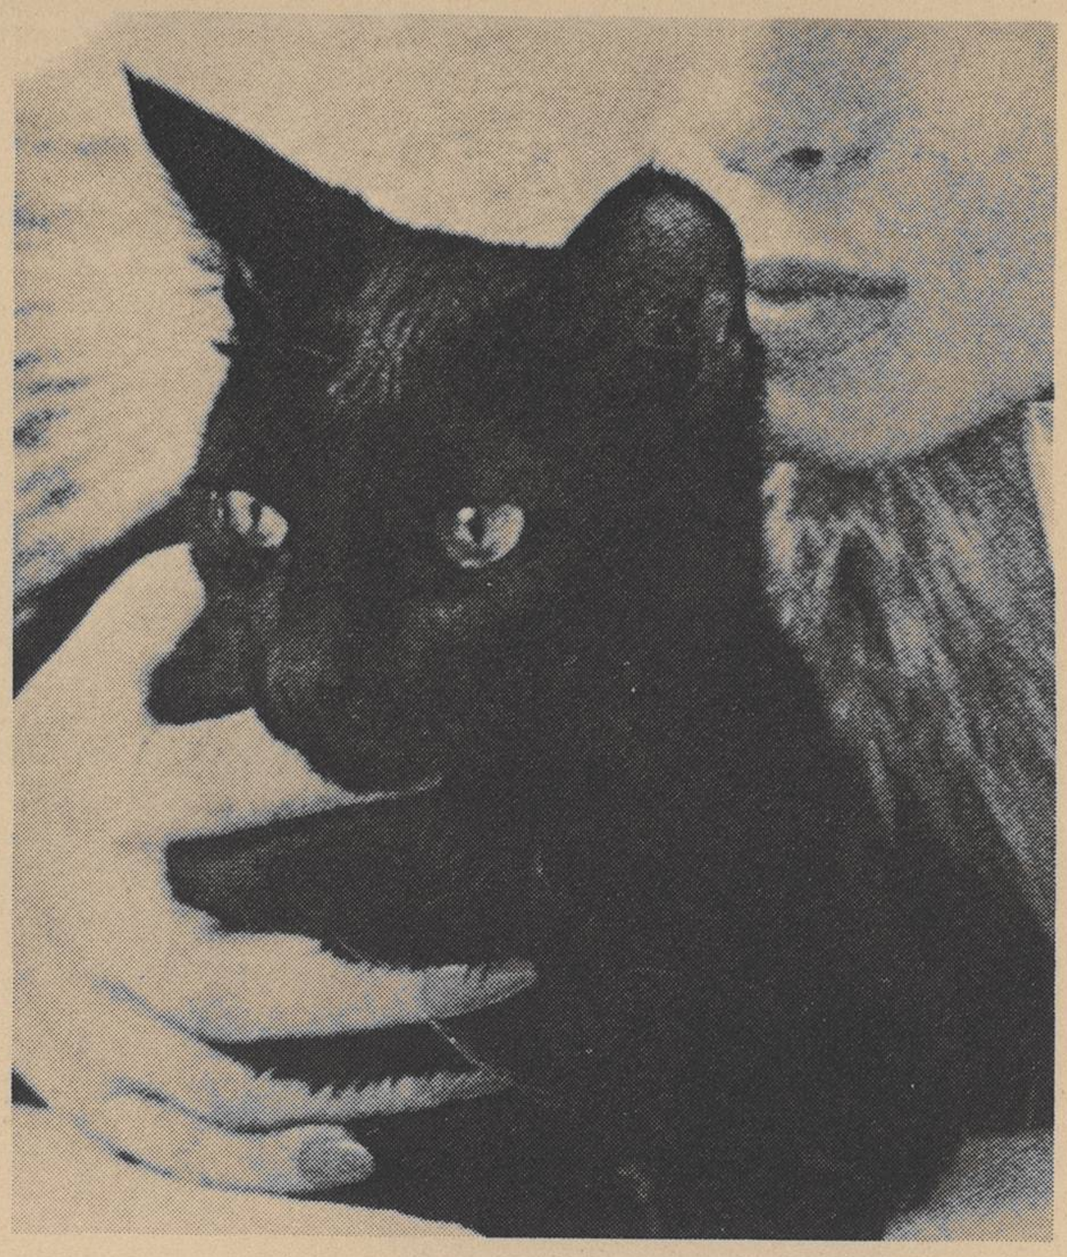

Who can scream the loudest?
Scream now altogether.
Chase coherence till thought is pain and
The thunder and lightning drive me insane.
Clamouring voices pound on my brain,
Seductive or raucous, they vie for my glance.
I almost think blindness would be sweet relief.
The sensual swamp is a glittering trap.
It lures with conscious power and sorcery.
But behind the brightness it is petty and mean.
And the soot and psychiatrists are gaining ground.

IT TICKLES

A crack of light peeked
Past my door,
And a dark figure sneaked
Across my floor,
To where I lay still,
In a sound of silence.
With green eyes of evil,
I felt this moment grow tense
Til I heard beside me
A kitty cat's purr,
And by my feet
The softness of fur.
And with his little pink nose,
He tickles my toes.

LONELINESS

A lonely figure,
The wind howling through the trees,
The night is still dark.

Sharon Dras 3C

A trickling, truckle of the gentle rain
A solemn solitude within myself
The almost noiseless serenity of growth
A rhythmic clashing as force meets force.
The harnessed fury of the sea.
The dominant sounds of emptiness rules over all.

TO A FRIEND

There are no birds in all the trees,
Whose lovely songs could even please,
As does your voice when you speak
Soft words of love.

Awake to the smell of pine-scented air
Eventually subdued by the rancid dew-worms
The view of the field from my smoke-filled room
Arrayed fragrance of lilacs now rotten.
Barbeques leave the smell of burnt steak
Along the fish laden lakeshore at dusk.

Hockin's "44's"

Accompanied by a gust of chill winter air the youth entered the subway station. With a backward glance he could see the red lights of the bus receding into the darkness, distorted by the grime and dirt on the door's glass windows. He advanced towards the ticket booth with an easy, confident manner, the contact of his heels with the tile floor producing sharp clicks that echoed throughout the station. His arms hung loosely at his sides and he was wearing an expensive suede jacket that rubbed slightly with the motion of his stride. The light colour of the suede was offset by the youth's jet black hair that reached almost to his shoulders and was parted meticulously down the middle. Clear, confident eyes encompassed the interior of the station; the faded green wall tiles, the floor that looked as though it hadn't been cleaned in weeks, the ceiling that needed a new coat of paint but would probably never get one. There was a sharp contrast between the drabness of the building and the smart, clean-cut profile of the youth which he could see all too well. Perhaps his chin was raised a trifle higher than usual as he approached the turnstiles, perhaps his eyes showed a trace of mockery.

The station master regarded him from behind the glass walls of the ticket booth with indifference, which irritated the youth somewhat. He fished in his pocket and produced a token which tinkled noisily when it was dropped into the ticket well.

There was no one else around as he descended the stairs to the train platform, which added to the youth's isolation. As he expected, the platform was deserted. The youth wandered up to and past the yellow warning line so he could take a good look down the tunnel. The subway tracks were obliquely outlined four feet below him by the naked light thrown off by the neon bulbs in the roof. They dwindled away from the platform until they were swallowed up by the blackness of the tunnel.

The youth's contemplation of the tracks was interrupted by a shuffling noise behind him, which caused him to start slightly and turn around more quickly than he would have liked. What he saw was a man in his mid-sixties wearing a tattered overcoat that obviously wasn't bought by him as it was at least two sizes too big. Shoes projected from the bottom of baggy trousers, one of which had a frayed lace, the other having no lace at all. His look of shabbiness was accompanied by uncombed hair and a chin with several days growth of stubble. The man slowly idled up to the youth and asked in a somewhat hesitant voice: "Say mister, can you spare a quarter? It's my wife's birthday tomorrow and I haven't got any money to buy her a present."

The youth studied the man's face for a moment, then reached into his pocket and produced a coin, which he tossed into the air. The man caught it deftly and it vanished into the depths of his tattered coat. "Thanks."

The man ambled away towards the other end of the platform, and the youth returned his gaze to the tracks. Out of the corner of his eye he saw two men walk out onto the platform, both as shabbily dressed as the one who had asked him for money. The three talked for a few moments, their words echoing off the tile walls and garbling their voices.

Suddenly the scene erupted into violence. The man that had asked the youth for money was attacked by the other two, being beaten in the face and chest, and finally kicked as he collapsed onto the concrete floor. The youth started to run towards them. As soon as they saw that he was coming, the two men gave the third a few final kicks and ran up the stairs. By the time the youth got to the stairs they had vanished.

He returned to where the man was lying prostrate against the wall, blood oozing from his nose and several cuts on his face. He was moaning softly and his hands were clenching themselves occasionally while his face was distorted with pain. The youth's eyes searched the platform for someone, anyone. The building's emptiness yawned back at him.

Trying to decide what to do he happened to glance down the tunnel and it was then that he saw the pinpoint of light stabbing through the blackness. At first the youth couldn't hear the subway train: it was completely silent except for the man's irregular breathing and occasional moans.

The blast of air being pushed down the tunnel ahead of the approaching train tousled the youth's hair. In a moment he could hear the whine of the brakes and soon the train appeared, leaping out from the blackness of the tunnel and sliding noisily to a stop beside the platform.

The youth made no motion to board the train but stood regarding the man on the floor. His eyes, once mocking, once confident, now held the agony of indecision. Even when the conductor's warning blast sounded throughout the station, he did not move, but continued to look at the prostrate man, at his cut and bleeding face. Slowly he shifted his gaze to the train, and with three hesitant steps boarded it.

As soon as the youth realized his decision, he motioned as if to return to the platform, but it was too late. The doors of the subway closed with a metallic hiss, and with a small jolt the train slowly accelerated away from the station. The lights of the train remained visible for a long time as it sped down the tunnel until they finally vanished into the blackness.

A VIEW THROUGH THE WINDOW

I hate:
To watch children run through the snow,
To sit by the window and cry,
To wipe the tears away so no one will know,
To hope for something that will never be,
To scream silently with no one to hear,
To ask "am I really so different?" and get no answer, but a stare,
To reach out my hand and find no
one to love me,
To fall asleep knowing tomorrow is yet to come,
To know this is only one day out of a lifetime.

Lina Di Carlo 4B

Hier, I went downtown using public transport
I mounted a bus. And descended into a subway
It reminded me of a blockade; a sealed in fort
Where one could not tell if it were night, or if it were day

I sat down and after I read the advertisements
There was nothing else left to do. So I listened
But didn't hear the bustling women and gents
I heard the terrified cry of a baby as we rounded a bend

The train screamed on picking up momentum
Striving to reach its goal. It slowed to open its doors
The baby seemed tiny enclosed in the arms of its mum.
It was used to quiet, order, and unmoving floors

To it, everything was unfamiliar; the people, the wind, the movement
So the mite cried. Big, scared, heart-rending sobs
Passengers sat wondering how their money should be spent
And the babe cried on amidst uncaring mobs

Pretty soon the people got tired of hearing it
They wished they baby would stop. And the mother would go
She departed as the baby's cries became an hysterical fit
After this trip, how many nightmares will it know?

COMPENSATION

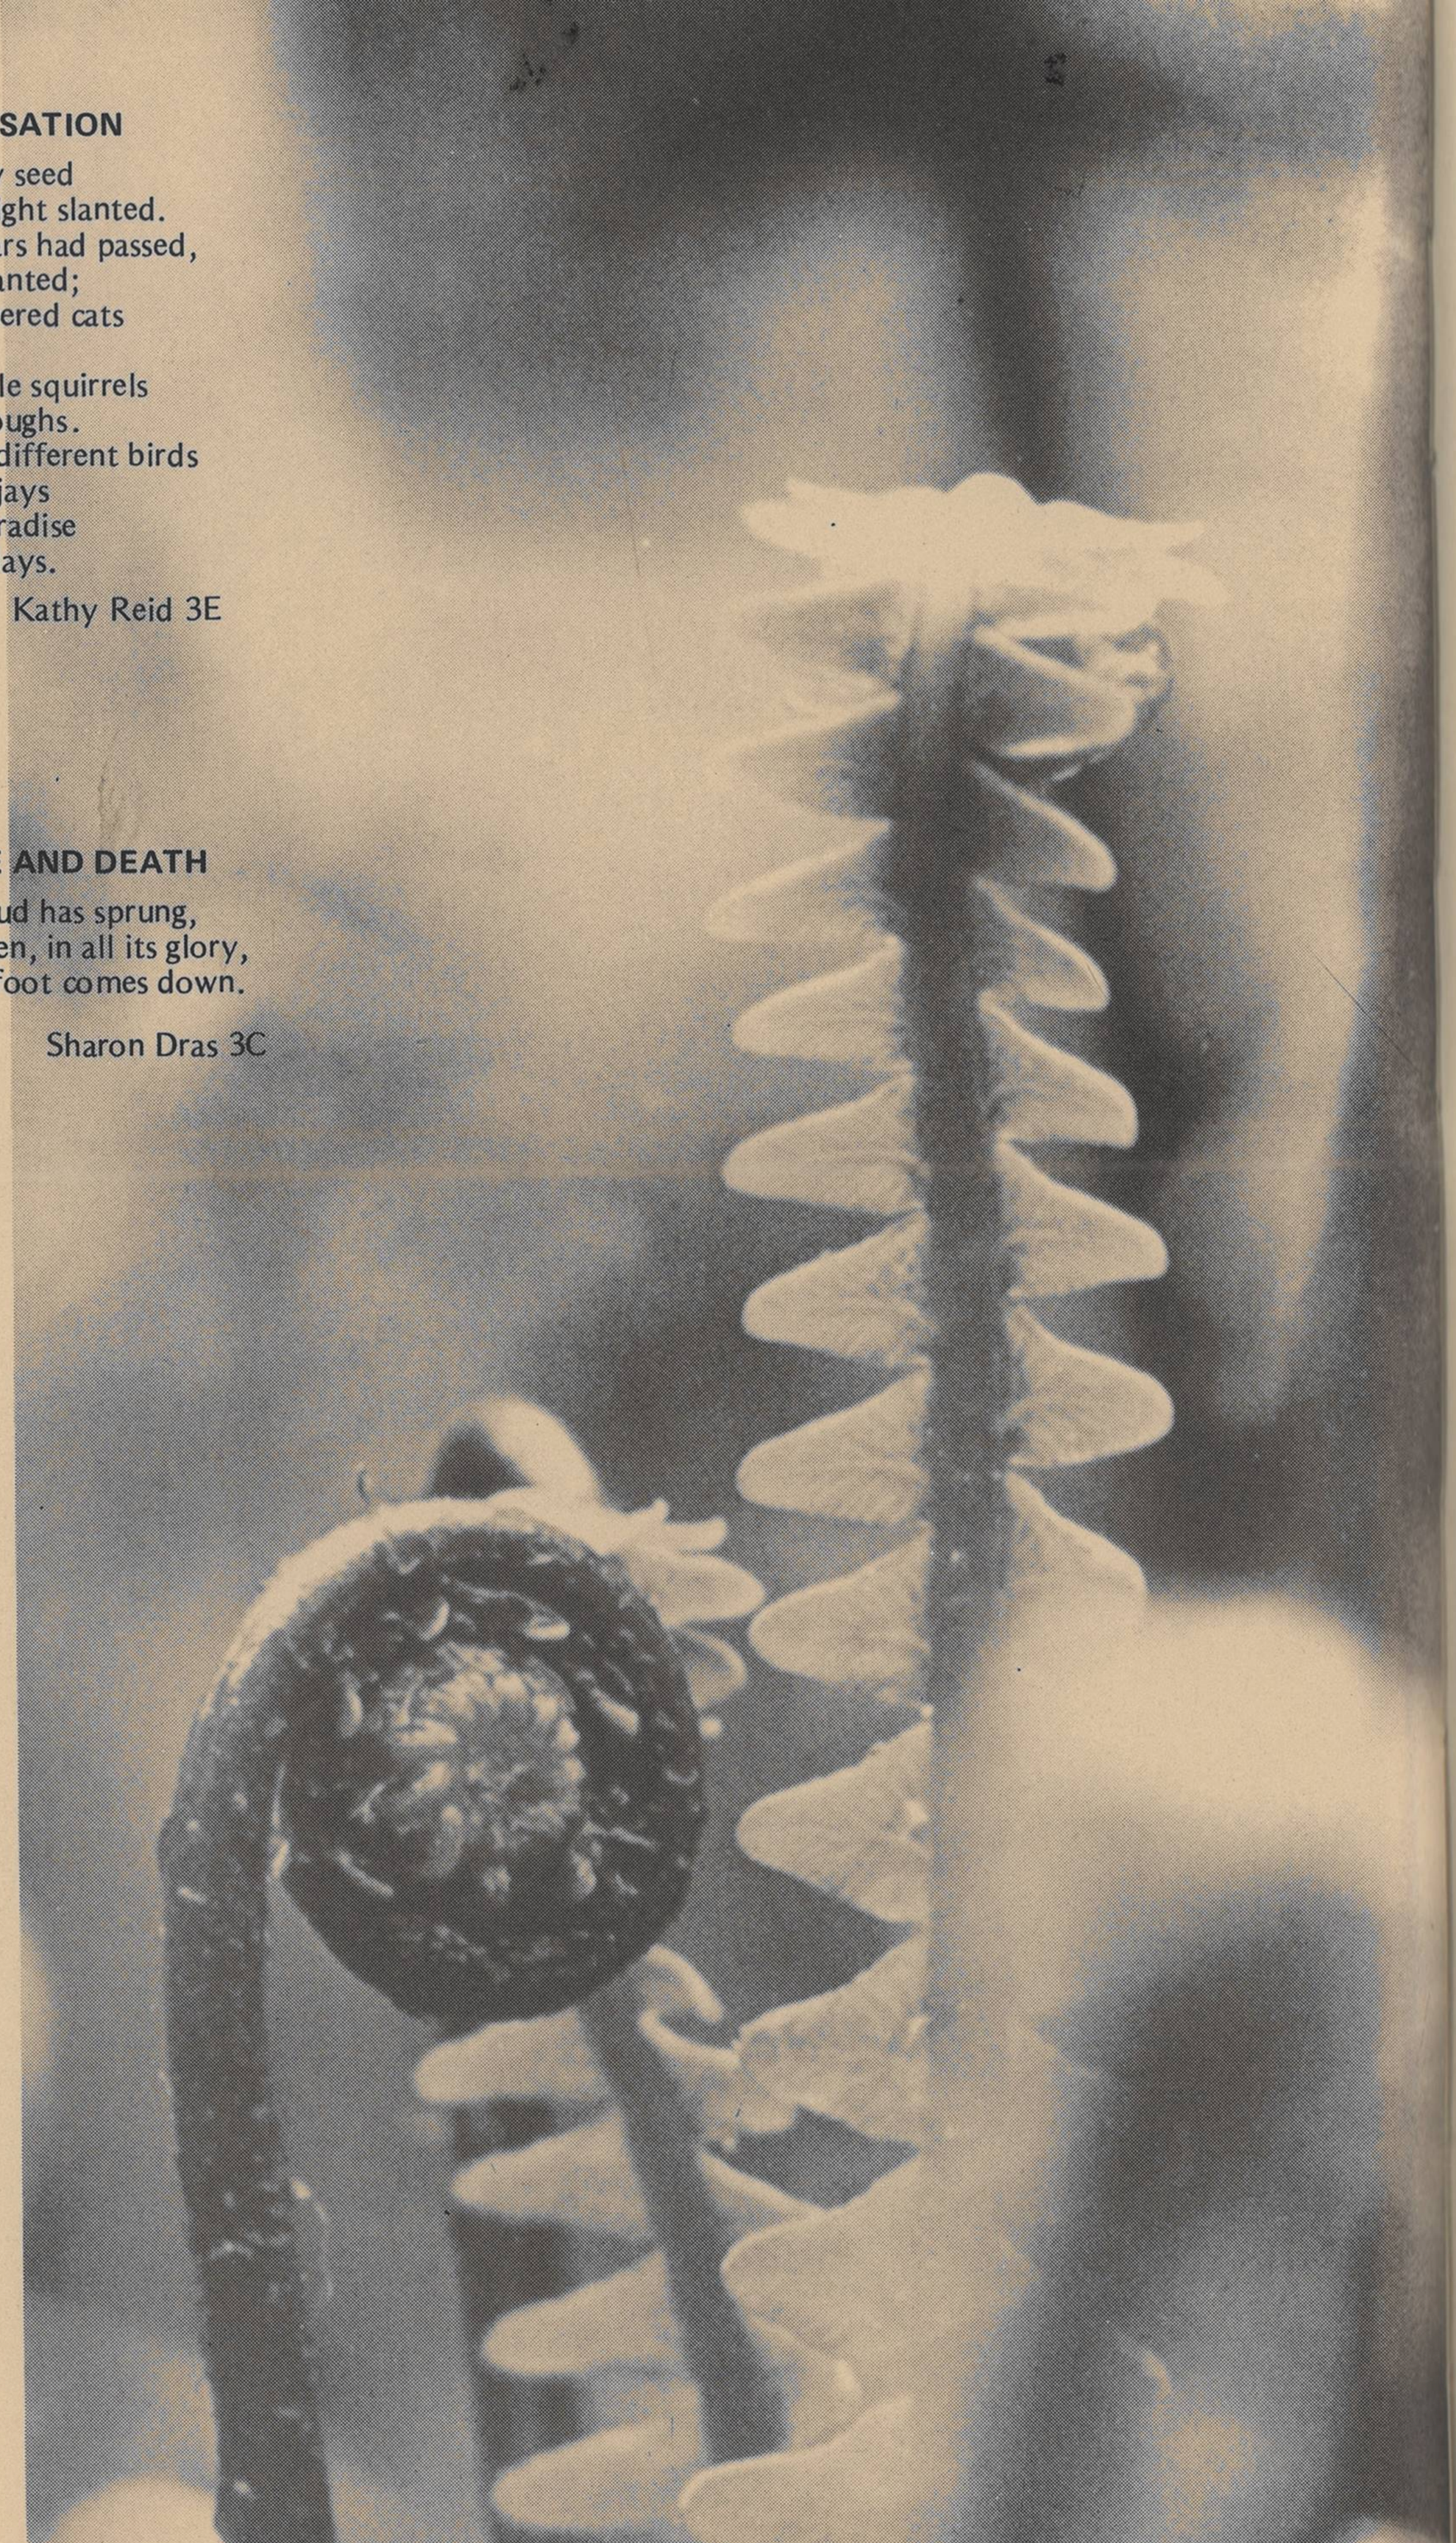

I planted once a tiny seed
Where morning sunlight slanted.
I knew it not till years had passed,
But this is what I planted;
A refuge for beleaguered cats
An oasis for cows
A circus tent for little squirrels
Performing on its boughs.
An opera house for different birds
A town hall for the jays
And for myself a paradise
On balmy summer days.

YOU AND I

Wandering
The corridors of time
Our paths once crossed
We walked together for a while
And it was good
We made many memories
Some sweet, some not
That doesn't matter now
For we were together
Once, long, long ago
But the demon clock would not stop
And we had to say good-bye
Left with only the hope
That our paths
Would cross once again in time
But take heart
For you will always live
In the depths of my mind.

REGRET

His hand was limp on her tiny wrist as she raised it to touch his face. Her thin finger tips traced his bushy sideburns on the side of his warm cheeks. She played with the coarse hairs that felt so masculine, yet were so soft. He took her hand and gently put it on the bed between them covering it with his own. Then she looked up at him with wide wet eyes. He knew she was staring at him; his cheeks reddened but he refused to look up at her. He coughed, cleared his throat and moved slightly in his chair, beside her bed; uncomfortably. She looked away. He stared at their hands for a long while, then, trying to break the silence he spoke, "I . . . I was worried about it – uh – I mean you and . . ." She looked up at him then and their eyes met. It seemed like hours before they could pull themselves away from their thoughts. Then she spoke, "I wasn't sure babe, I – I wa-wasn't sure." Then she lifted up his hand on hers, squeezed it, then placed it cupped on her swollen stomach. A salty tear ran down her pale white face as she smiled shyly and whispered to him.
"Can you feel it?"

THE NEW SAINT-JUST

I am born on that region,
Between man and the universe.
I come to this, hell's tenth circle
Cold as marble, impervious as stone
To the weak passions of the living.
I am the New Saint-Just.

I come to demask the masses,
Face them with the horror of life.
I come to purge them.
In my vessel of Virtue,
I will float into the Harbour
On a torrent of their blood.
I am the New Saint-Just.

Following the impulse of Virtue
Shall we all wear coarse cloth
And sleep on straw-filled mats.
Still here, must they die,
They must be made to see
For the hyacinthe dies early,
As does the New Saint-Just.

They will react, these plastic people,
Insecure without their wall and shadow,
And will take up the cry "Crucify Him!"
Then drag Virtue to the guillotine.
Die now, New Saint-Just.

They will cheer as the guillotine blade
Cleaves my head from my neck
Scream with perverse joy
As the black blood trickles
Down the well-worn scaffold,
Yell with ecstacy
As the yellow marrow wells up
From the depths of my vertebrae
They have killed the New Saint-Just.

Let them hide again in their lives
Let the historians label me insane,
For in three days, I shall rise
Again from the dead
And purge the world of mud.

Robert Algar 5C

Is this all that we were meant to come to?
To tear and pull each other apart.
This love that started out so clean and pure.
No demands,
No conflicts.
How easily this world pollutes and destroys
What is perfect and without blemish,
We, who felt no pressures,
Were pushed and shaped by an unseen force.
We could not escape.
Time was our only protection.
And it ran out.
And so today we rip and tear each other apart.
And try to hurt each other,
And by this hurting, hope to ease our own.

JAZZ BAND

Bright lights flashing,
up, down, all around
People watching
staring, glaring, in a daze.

Then silence,
the band begins to play
with red faces
they blow, bow, sing, swing
they tap, snap with their feet.

The singer,
screaming, swinging,
singing songs.

The music they play-Jazz it is loud,
soft,
fast,
slow,
It's jazz they play.

HANDS

The hands
of a baby
are a gift from God.

The hands
of youth
are maturing.

The hands
of a woman
are kind.

The hands
of an old man
are wise.

But the hands
of the blind
are all they have to see in a world of darkness.

TO A STRANGER

When I'm dying in my bed
Will you stop and say goodbye?
And will you guide me to my God,
Say a prayer and maybe cry?

yearbook

This year the yearbook staff attempted to create an entirely new format with much more pictorial layouts. The archaic "Conning Tower" title was dropped and the total yearbook size exanded 50% to accommodate more candid pictures of school activities. In an attempt to create a new book the editors met with very little student support. The lack of entries for the various contests are evidence of this all too common student apathy. Not only that but the yearbook staff had to operate out of a cardboard box in the guidance office. If the students want an outstanding yearbook they're going to have to put out a lot more to support it.

SPECIAL ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Miss S. Berneman, Mr. K. Lovinsky (Staff Advisors), Sharon Todkill, Tim White, Ted Schade, Elena Tondat, Mr. M. Crepp, Vicky Chernish, Grace Lee, Barbara Darnowski, George Palik, Mike Mueller, Warren Beech, Anita Kalia, Mr. D. Chong, Mrs. P. Greenberg, Mrs. L. Boyd, Mr. R. Gaouette, Star Ristow, Anita Lovell.

We thank the above people for their whole-hearted support in yearbook production.

When putting a book together one realizes how true the saying "It's impossible to please everyone . . ." really is. A book doesn't make itself; there must be material to assemble it from — the better the material, the better the book. You the students of Weston provide the material through laughs and frowns, wins and losses, strains and satisfactions, spirit and enthusiasm.

This is your book. I hope you'll laugh at the pictures, ponder over the write-ups and enjoy your yearbook for years to come!

This year marked the beginning of W.C.I.'s first Geography club. As the membership increased an executive council was elected to plan and discuss the activities that the club would partake in. The club organized and went on several field trips, which included excursions to the Royal Ontario Museum and through the Humber River Valley.

One of the Humber River field trips was a hike in which the fossils and landscape were studied. We collected numerous samples, and after stopping to pick up a unique piece of garnet, covered with an enormous amount of rock, we headed home.

backstage, GUYS & DOLLS

Broadway came to Weston C.I. this year with the musical fable of GUYS AND DOLLS. The story introduced the audience to the big-time gamblers of the 30's and their dolls in New York. The main plot revolves around Miss Adelaide, star of the Hot Box, and her pursuit of marriage to her fiancé of fourteen years, Nathan Detroit. The sub-plot involves Sky Masterson, the gambler who would accept even the craziest of bets; the most recent being one with Nathan Detroit, involving the wooing of Miss Sarah Brown, the dedicated leader of the Save-a-Soul Mission. A few of the many adventures of the story include a trip to Havana, the saving of the mission and the organization of an illegal floating crap game. The production required a great deal of work, but the thunderous applause made it all worthwhile in the end.
